

A Bridge Detroit Needs

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) Carlos Gutierrez

Source The Washington Post

Date December 11, 2008

URL <http://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/content/article/2008/12/10/AR2008121003016.html>

Quote

“ The effects of a shutdown would multiply beyond the auto industry and would significantly postpone our nation's economic recovery. If Congress fails to act now, U.S. real gross domestic product could decline by more than 1 percent and the country would be likely to lose more than a million jobs. We all agree that the auto industry is important -- but we also agree that real changes and tough decisions must be made to ensure that the firms become financially viable. Any funding must come with significant strings attached.”

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues for the position United States should bail out the automobile industry on the topic Economic crisis of 2008.

Retrieved from "https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=A_Bridge_Detroit_Needs&oldid=8505"

This page was last edited on December 11, 2008, at 15:45.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.