

A Bustling Hate-Crime Industry

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) George F. Will

Source The Washington Post

Date May 13, 2007

URL <http://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/content/article/2007/05/11/AR2007051102133.html>

Quote

“ This draws government steadily deeper into stigmatizing certain thoughts and attitudes, which incites more and more groups to clamor for inclusion in the ranks of the especially protected. And Timothy Lynch of the Cato Institute notes that prosecutors of supposed hate crimes must pry into defendants' lives -- books and magazines read, Internet sites visited, the nature of his or her friends -- to uncover evidence of unsavory thinking.”

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues against the position Act should be passed on the topic Local Law Enforcement Hate Crimes Prevention Act of 2007.

Retrieved from "https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=A_Bustling_Hate-Crime_Industry&oldid=5788"

This page was last edited on May 14, 2007, at 01:37.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.