

A case for divesting in Sudan

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) Nat Hentoff

Source The Washington Times

Date October 23, 2006

URL <http://www3.washingtontimes.com/op-ed/20061022-110540-4901r.htm>

Quote

“ "Do the National Foreign Trade Council lobbyists, so pleased with their "purifying" the Darfur Peace and Accountability Act, ever give a thought to the blood on the profits their clients reap from their business ventures in Sudan? Are they wholly oblivious to the mass murders and rapes -- and the slaughter of the very, very young? When I was a kid, I couldn't imagine American companies doing business with Hitler. Growing up, I found that some did. So I'm not shocked now, just disgusted. "

”

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues for the position Economic sanctions should be imposed on Sudan on the topic Darfur conflict.

Retrieved from "https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=A_case_for_divesting_in_Sudan&oldid=6887"

This page was last edited on December 3, 2007, at 02:50.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.