

A realistic plan: Split the country in two

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) Jonathan Last

Source The Philadelphia Inquirer

Date December 3, 2006

URL <http://www.philly.com/mld/inquirer/news/editorial/16149526.htm>

Quote

“The border would be drawn along the ethnic contours of Iraq, with Kirkuk (and probably Mosul) as part of Kurdistan and Baghdad as part of the much larger southern Shia state. Both territories have enough oil to be economically viable. After the partition, the United States would be free to pursue separate policies with each, using different carrots and sticks as needed.”

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues for the position Iraq should be split up on the topic Post-invasion Iraq.

This item refers to the previous opinion item Crush the Sunnis.

Retrieved from

"https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=A_realistic_plan:_Split_the_country_in_two&oldid=4327"

This page was last edited on December 27, 2006, at 17:40.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.