

A repeal that'll be dangerous to our health

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) Derrick Jackson

Source The Boston Globe

Date December 14, 2010

URL http://www.boston.com/bostonglobe/editorial_opinion/oped/articles/2010/12/14/a_repeal_thatll_be_dangerous_to_our_health/

Quote

“As flawed as the law may be to critics on the left and right, going backward is not a reasonable option. More caution against wholesale repeal came in the form of a recent study from Columbia University that suggested that US overspending on health might be harming Americans. Analyzing survival rates for men and women ages 45 and 65, Americans have stunningly fallen behind other large, wealthy nations in life expectancy. That is despite a rate of health care spending that has grown nearly twice as fast as the spending in 12 comparison countries since 1970.”

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues against the position Act should not have been passed on the topic Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act.

Retrieved from

"https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=A_repeal_that'll_be_dangerous_to_our_health&oldid=13623"

This page was last edited on December 14, 2010, at 22:03.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.