

Connecticut United States Senate election, 2006 / Lieberman should drop out of the race

< Connecticut United States Senate election, 2006 This is the approved revision of this page, as well as being the most recent.

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

Position: Lieberman should drop out of the race

This position addresses the topic Connecticut United States Senate election, 2006.

For this position

“ But now that he's running as an independent, the last pillars of that rationale have crumbled. What's the point of running to uphold Democratic hawkishness when you're running against the Democratic Party and its chosen nominee? ”

From Give It Up, Joe, by Jonathan Chait (Los Angeles Times, August 13, 2006) (view)

Against this position

“ But the critical question facing voters in November, as opposed to party leaders now, is who would make the better senator -- which is why we welcome Mr. Lieberman's decision to remain in the race. He would be, by far, the better choice for the people of Connecticut. ”

From Mr. Lieberman's Choice, by The Washington Post editorial board (The Washington Post, August 10, 2006) (view)

Mixed on this position

No results

Retrieved from

"https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=Connecticut_United_States_Senate_election,_2006/_Lieberman_shou ld_drop_out_of_the_race&oldid=2136"

This page was last edited on August 15, 2006, at 15:40.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.