Eat Crow, Iraq War Skeptics

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s)	Arthur Herman
Source	New York Post
Date	June 9, 2008
URL	http://www.nypost.com/seven/06092008/postopinion/opedcolumnists/eat_crow_iraq_war_skeptics_114671.htm?page=0	0
Quote	"We need to acknowledge that the Iraq war wasn't a "distraction" from the War on Terror, as critics still complain, but its centerpiece. It's not mere coincidence that our success against al Qaeda globally comes along with success in Iraq. For all its setbacks and frustrations, the Iraq war drew jihadists into a battle they thought they could win, because it would be fought on their home turf - but which they're now losing disastrously."

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues against the position Coalition troops should pull out on the topic Postinvasion Iraq.

Retrieved from "https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=Eat_Crow,_Iraq_War_Skeptics&oldid=7707"

This page was last edited on June 12, 2008, at 19:52.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.