

Land without peace: Why Abbas went to the U.N.

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) Charles Krauthammer

Source The Washington Post

Date September 29, 2011

URL http://www.washingtonpost.com/opinions/land-without-peace-why-abbas-went-to-the-un/2011/09/29/gIQAcaol8K_story.html

Quote

“ Israel has offered the Palestinians land for peace three times since. And been refused every time. Why? For exactly the same reason Abbas went to the United Nations last week: to get land without peace. Sovereignty with no reciprocal recognition of a Jewish state. Statehood without negotiations. An independent Palestine in a continued state of war with Israel. ”

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues against the position United Nations should vote to recognize a Palestinian state on the topic 2011 United Nations recognition vote of Palestinian state.

Retrieved from

"https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=Land_without_peace:_Why_Abbas_went_to_the_U.N.&oldid=14859"

This page was last edited on October 3, 2011, at 10:06.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.