ObamaCare's Crippling Deficits

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) Martin Feldstein

Source The Wall Street Journal

Date September 7, 2009

URL http://online.wsj.com/article/SB10001424052970203585004574393110640864526.html

Quote

"The CBO's cost estimate understates the number who would receive the subsidy because it ignores the incentive for many firms to drop employer-provided coverage. It also ignores the strong incentive that individuals would have to reduce reportable cash incomes to qualify for higher subsidy rates. The total cost of ObamaCare over the next decade likely would be closer to $2 trillion than to $1 trillion."

"

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues against the position Act should be passed on the topic Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act.

Retrieved from "https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=ObamaCare%27s Crippling Deficits&oldid=11348"

This page was last edited on March 11, 2010, at 14:37.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.