

Responding to North Korea

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) The Washington Post editorial board

Source The Washington Post

Date October 10, 2006

URL <http://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/content/article/2006/10/09/AR2006100901137.html>

Quote

“ In the absence of workable military options, the United States probably cannot force North Korea to give up its bomb, nor can the United States overturn the regime. The real leverage lies with South Korea and China. Without their continued material support, and their insistence on shutting their borders to the North's desperate people, the Kim regime could not survive for long.”

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues for the position China should pressure North Korea to give up its nuclear ambitions on the topic North Korean nuclear crisis.

This item argues for the position Economic sanctions should be placed on North Korea on the topic North Korean nuclear crisis.

Retrieved from "https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=Responding_to_North_Korea&oldid=3665"

This page was last edited on October 10, 2006, at 16:23.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.