

Suing Arizona

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) The Wall Street Journal editorial board

Source The Wall Street Journal

Date July 7, 2010

URL <http://online.wsj.com/article/SB10001424052748704026204575266530340495538.html>

Quote

“ "The feds may well win their case on the Constitutional merits, and we also oppose the Arizona law on grounds that it is a misuse of scarce police resources. One of its provisions criminalizes anyone who stops to pick up an illegal migrant worker even to do yard work. Arizona police have enough to worry about without making criminals of suburbanites who want help in landscaping their cactus gardens. On the other hand, the alarmists are wrong to portray the law as creating a new race-based police state. Nearly all of the law mirrors federal immigration statutes and orders local police to enforce those statutes for the first time."

”

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item takes a mixed stance on the position Lawsuit was justified on the topic United States of America v. Arizona.

Retrieved from "https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=Suing_Arizona&oldid=12389"

This page was last edited on July 7, 2010, at 19:52.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.