The 'Benchmark' Excuse

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) The Wall Street Journal editorial board

Source The Wall Street Journal

Date July 12, 2007

URL http://opinionjournal.com/editorial/feature.html?id=110010323

Quote

"Mr. Crocker is referring, of course, to the possibility of far nastier violence if the U.S. departs before Iraqi security forces can maintain order. Some will denounce this as a parade of horribles designed to intimidate Congress, but we also recall some of the same people who predicted that a Communist triumph in Southeast Asia would yield only peace, not the "boat people" and genocide. Those Americans demanding a U.S. retreat in Iraq will be directly responsible for whatever happens next."

"

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues against the position Coalition troops should pull out on the topic Postinvasion Iraq.

Retrieved from "https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=The %27Benchmark%27 Excuse&oldid=6211"

This page was last edited on July 12, 2007, at 18:49.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.