

The 'Blame The Iraqis' Gambit

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) Robert Kagan

Source The Washington Post

Date June 3, 2007

URL <http://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/content/article/2007/06/01/AR2007060102179.html>

Quote

“ "We didn't intervene in Iraq primarily to save the Iraqi people. We went in mostly for reasons of our own, to protect our interests and our allies from the menace of a serial aggressor whose domestic repression was of a piece with his desire for regional domination. And now that we are in Iraq, the United States, not just the Iraqi people, will suffer the consequences of our failure." ”

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues against the position Coalition troops should pull out on the topic Post-invasion Iraq.

Retrieved from "https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=The_%27Blame_The_Iraqis%27_Gambit&oldid=5856"

This page was last edited on June 4, 2007, at 17:32.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.