

The solution to money in politics

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) Michael Kinsley

Source The Washington Post

Date April 4, 2014

URL http://www.washingtonpost.com/opinions/michael-kinsley-the-solution-to-money-in-politics/2014/04/04/5ac0b412-bb8c-11e3-96ae-f2c36d2b1245_story.html

Quote “ The rules are made for the rule-abiding, and a rule-abiding politician can use money from campaign contributions only in efforts to persuade the voters. In other words, not only is campaign spending speech — it is only speech. That’s all the money is good for. And the voters have it within their power to ignore this speech and make all that contribution money worthless. ”

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues for the position Supreme Court voted correctly on the topic McCutcheon v. Federal Election Commission.

Retrieved from "https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=The_solution_to_money_in_politics&oldid=17422"

This page was last edited on April 6, 2014, at 17:33.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.