

Time to Talk

This is the approved revision of this page, as well as being the most recent.

The printable version is no longer supported and may have rendering errors. Please update your browser bookmarks and please use the default browser print function instead.

This is an opinion item.

Author(s) Leslie H. Gelb

Source The Wall Street Journal

Date 7/28/2006

URL <http://www.opinionjournal.com/editorial/feature.html?id=110008711>

Quote

“Mr. Bush needs to use the present crisis to justify new and wide-ranging talks with Syria and Iran, and, if necessary, indirectly with Hamas and Hezbollah. These rank at the top of the world's nastiest and most untrustworthy negotiating partners, but they also happen to be the ones causing most of the trouble--and are, therefore, the ones we have to deal with.”

Add or change this opinion item's references

This item argues for the position United States should negotiate with Syria on the topic 2006 Israel-Lebanon conflict.

This item argues for the position United States should negotiate with Iran on the topic 2006 Israel-Lebanon conflict.

This item argues for the position United States should negotiate with Syria on the topic Post-invasion Iraq.

This item argues for the position United States should negotiate with Iran on the topic Post-invasion Iraq.

Retrieved from "https://discoursedb.org/w/index.php?title=Time_to_Talk&oldid=3951"

This page was last edited on November 24, 2006, at 17:37.

All text is available under the terms of the GNU Free Documentation License.

